

Four words...Trust, Quality, Service and Value

Fernando V. Galaviz started with these four words as the basic tenets of what he wanted his business to represent and after 35 years of great successes in both the private and public sector, he established THE CENTECH GROUP, Inc. (CENTECH) in April of 1988. Starting with a couple of federal logistics and service support and training contracts acquired from a small 8(a) company called ETI, Mr. Galaviz and a single employee in the corporate office on Courthouse Road in Arlington, Virginia managed 48 people in the field and set about building a business that would operate in accordance with the core tenets of Trust, Quality, Service and Value. The goal was to grow an exceptional federal services contracting organization that would earn a sterling reputation as a respected company with highest levels of integrity and would change the idea of being an employee to being a highly skilled and professional “team member.” To make sure that everyone from team members to clients alike understood how much he believed in the core principles, as President and CEO, Mr. Galaviz issued a 100% customer satisfaction performance guarantee on all work performed by CENTECH... a guarantee we still stand by to this day.

Success didn't come easily and through the first two years of operation CENTECH faced considerable challenges including an initial 8(a) classification rejection by the Small Business Administration. Believing in the company and the basic principles and focusing on saving the “client” money, taking care of the team members in the field and continuously innovating and improving in order to provide the best solutions possible to achieve 100% satisfaction, CENTECH continued on and was eventually awarded its 8(a) certification in October of 1990. In June of 1991, CENTECH was awarded its first 8(a) contract with Resolution Trust Corporation. Then, we were off and running.

We have completed over 3000 contracts and major task orders in the U.S. and around the world, and delivered on 150 mission critical software development projects – all with 100% customer satisfaction. Our subcontractor history includes the management of more than 260 teaming partners with a current roster of 175 firms – 61 large corporations and 114 small business concerns. We have served as prime on 18 different contract vehicles including our current NETCENTS, VA GITTS, CAPS, DHS EAGLE, COMMITS NexGen GWAC, SeaPort-e, GSA IT Schedule and GSA MOBIS. Our reach now also includes over 20 office locations across the country.

From our first year's revenue which totaled less than $5 million, we have now grown into a $150+ million dollar firm through strategic growth, an industry leading integrated management approach, our quality management systems and best business practices. Our clients include the US Air Force, Army, Navy, National Guard and Coast Guard; Departments of Energy, Commerce, Agriculture, Justice, State, Transportation, Treasury, Veterans Affairs, Health and Human Services, and Homeland Security; Federal Highway and General Services Administrations and Customs and Border Protection just to name a few.

Through it all, we have always remembered that although we can develop the industry leading, automated, Web-based management systems, processes and programs (which we have done) – it is our highly skilled and motivated team members who make it all happen. Because of that, we offer some of the most competitive benefits programs in the industry and some of the most innovative Human Factors Management Programs which includes our Productivity and Quality Assurance Team Member Motivation Program™, our Professional Development Program and our Professional Review & Individual Development Evaluation™ (PRIDE) System. With 13 non-competitive awards programs and recognition given twice yearly at our semi-annual awards events, we prove that we know and recognize the value of our team members. We do this because we know that motivated and happy team members do better for themselves and are better for the company and our clients.

The future of CENTECH looks bright as we continue to build our organization and demonstrate everyday that we are THE “no risk” support services provider of choice to our clients, a trusted partner and a great place to work.
